The Charleston News.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 2, 1873.

THE CHARLESTON DAILY NEWS "is designa •ted as the newspaper for the publication of "all legal notices, and official advertisements, "for the County of Charleston, under the act of February 22d, 1870, entitled an act to regu-·late the publication of all legal and public "potices."

NEWS OF THE DAY.

-A professional visit of Madame Ristori to this country is announced. -Prussia and England are both substituting steel for bronze in the manufacture of field guns.

-President Thiers compares the political condition of France to that of an invalid, whom it would be imprudent to move. -Mrs. Emmeline Reed, tormerly of Brooklyn, being interpreted into Italian, signifies Signora Beatrice Amore, who has made a successful debut at Malta. -The city council of Atlanta, Ga., has passed an ordinance exempting, cotton, woollen and iron factories from taxation for fifteen -W. F. Clyde & Co., of New York and Philadelphia, have organized a new line to Havana. The company have bought the steamships Moro Castle and Crescent City. -Dr. S. Austin Alliborne's library is advertised for sale by a New York firm of auc-tioneers. The collection contains many valuable bibliographical works of the utmost value to librarians and book collectors. -The young Prince Louis Napoleon will not goto the Exhibition of Vienna. He was invited to the ceremony of inauguration by an autographic letter of the Emperor Francis Joseph, but the Prince refused on account of the recent decease of his father. -Professor Agassiz is in luck. In addition derson, the Massachusetts Senate has also voted to appropriate $50,000 for the benefit of the Museum of Comparative Zoology at Cam-

-An announcement that negotiations are in progress for the disposing of it has revealed the fact that the drapers of London have for some years been indulging in the luxury of a garden within a stone's throw of the Bank of England, at a cost of at least £12,000 per annum.

-Inasmuch as the New York Senate is about evenly divided on the question of giving the whole appointing power to the mayor, and neither party disposed to recede, the opinion now prevails at Albany that there will be no new charter for New York passed this session.

___J. B. Walters, associate editor of the Norfolk Journal, and James B. Hope, editor of the Norfolk Virginian, have been arrested in that city under the duelling act, and bound over to keep the peace in the sum of five thousand dollars each. It is alleged that Mr. Walters had challenged Mr. Hope for offensive language used towards him in the Virginian.

The Empress Eugenie pays frequent visits to her husband's tomb, at Chiselhurst, and is regular in her attendance at the services of the church; but, with these exceptions, her Majesty seldom goes outside the grounds. Her Mejesty has only once walked out since the death of the Emperor, and twice taken carriage exercise. Her health, however, has very much improved within the last few weeks.

The University of London has opened its degrees in science, law and medicine to studenta who have not studied Greek. This is not uncommon in the universities of Germany, France and Italy; but England has never before conceded the point. It will probably be many years before Oxford and Cambridge will follow the example of the London University.

-The Philadelphia Press has information from Harrisburg to the effect that a combination is to be formed next fall by regular Republicans, Democrats and Liberals, and all other friends of purity at elections, to secure an honest election in 1874. It is suggested that at the proper time a People's State Convention shall be called, solely on the issue of State and municipal regeneration, to nominate State candidates and organize the State for the election of a reform Legislature. -The Illinois Legislature has recently passed a law punishing by a fine of five hundred dellars any person who shall, by threat, intimidation or unlawful interference, seek to prevent any other person from obtaining work on any terms he or she shall see fit. Combinations of two or more persons to deprive the owners of property of its lawful use or management are forbidden, and any persons who, by threats, suggestions of danger, or any unlawful means, shall prevent any person or persons from being employed by such owner, on such terms as the parties concerned may agree upon, are made subject to a penalty of five hundred dollars fine and an imprisonment of six months. A like penalty is im-rations of coal mining. A remarkable wedding recently took place in Baltimore, Md. The bridegroom was Jesse Wa Uppercu, whose name has figured somewhat prominently before the public during the past winter. Nearly a year ago he was arrested on suspicion of having caused lower classes suffered more severely from posed upon persons intertering with the ope-

the death of his aunt by shooting her. Cir- this, as they were not likely to meet with comstantial evidence, it was said, pointed him out distinctly as the murderer, and the suspicions which were at first entertained regarding his guilt gradually became strengthened into belief as evidence was accumulated. The prisoner was indicted for murder and put upon trial for his life. The evidence brought out was almost entirely of a circumstantial character, and after a trial of unprecedented length the case was given to the jury, the prevailing belief being that he would be found guilty. The jury consulted together for a long time, but were unable to agree upon a verdict, and were finally discharged. In February, another trial was had, lasting a still greater length of time, and finally resulting in the prisoner's acquittal. All during the two long trials, a young lady possessed of unusual attractions, and occupying a high social position in Baltimore, was observed watching the proceedings day by day, and, when the prisoner was acquitted, she fainted away in the court-room. A few days since, the lady became Mrs. Uppercu, and, beside the relatives of the bride and bridegroom at the wedding ceremonies, there were present the judge who had presided at he court, and the counsel both for the defence and the prosecution.

The shipments in November and December, of 1869, are added to the shipments of 1870; those of November and December, 1870, to the shipments of 1871, and so on, inasmuch as these belong to the business season in which they are included. During the season of 1870-'71, a large quantity of fertilizers were shipped in excess of the consumption, and remained in depot to meet, in part, the demand of the fellowing year. This had its influence in diminishing the shipments of 1871-'72, which showed a falling off of nearly fifty per cent. The next year there was an increase of some seventy-five per cent., and the present season shows an increase of twenty per cent. upon the shipments of 1869-'70, in which year the shipments were far in excess of anything that had before been heard of. or dreamed of. Nor is this the only startling feature of the present season. The supply of fertilizers is not nearly equal to the lemand. Factories are running night and day. Railroad lines and depots are blocked, and can take no more. Yet the orders pour in, and the farmers frantically cry for Fertil-

There is no doubt, in our mind, that the actual consumption of fertilizers this year is at least twenty-five per cent. in excess of the consumption of 1870. The probable effect of this upon the cotton crop of 1873-774, with favorable seasons, each planter or factor must estimate for himself.

An Ill Wind. There is one very practical view which may be taken of the decision of the United States Supreme Court confirming the judgment of to the gift of Pennekese Island and $50,000 the State Supreme Court, that the bills of ol of natural history, by Mr. An- the Bank of the State of South Carolina are not receivable in payment of taxes. The general belief was that the Federal Court | This is good law and sound sense. The would reverse the decision of the State Court, and this opinion was shared by the State officials themselves. But the uncertainty of the law receives another illustration, and the good folk who expected to make small fortunes by selling at eighty or ninety what bills they bought at twenty or thirty, find themselves in possession of bundles of soiled paper which seem to have now no other element of value than their possible sharing in the assets of the bank, when prior claims are satisfied and the assets are distributed. The decision of the Supreme Court is, of course, final, and to the people, at large, the decision is a relief from as much taxation, or increased debt, as would have covered the amount of bills in existence. They would have turned up in every nook and corner; no safe would have been without its bundle. The Columbia Herald estimates that at least two million dollars of the bills are outstanding. As soon as these were declared to be receivable for taxes they would have poured into the treasury; those who bought the bills at a discount would save that discount in paying their tax. To the few who hold the bills, or could buy them, this would have been a great gain. The general public would have been the losers. Bank of the State bills will not carry on the government and defray its expenses, and every dollar of bills paid into the treasury would have had to be met, in a lump or by instalments, by a corresponding increase in the rate of taxation. Think of it! To fill next year the hole caused by the substitution of bank bills for greenbacks, an additional tax of about one and one fifth per cent. would have been necessary. This would have brought up the total tax to two and three-quarters or three per cent. A provision for receiving the bills by instalments would only postpone the evil day. Every dollar in bank bills which went added dollar of tax or public debt.

into the treasury must have been met by an

The Property of Married Women.

The Legislature of Kentucky has passed a law providing that a woman shall not be held responsible for debts contracted by her husband. This is an evidence of the steady liberalization of opinion on the Woman question. Some years ago the Republican Legislature of South Carolina secured absolute protection to the property of married women. It is gratifying to see a Democratic body adopting, even incompletely, the same wise measure. And it is to be hoped that other governments will follow the good ex-

It is in England that women have been most exposed to oppression. There the law gave the husband unlimited control over his wife's property or earnings. The that forbearance which 'upper-tendom" could hope to receive. But even in England protection is now afforded to property acquired after the wife has been deserted by her husband. A law has further been suggested of a "limited liability" partnership in marriage, which approaches the American idea of justice. A true wife wou'd gladly give, all she owns to cave her husband from the consequences of misfortune, or of an error repented of too late. It is simply her duty to make any sacrifice for that purpose. But where the generosity of a woman only lends fuel to the flames, it becomes a higher duty to refuse the means of reckless waste, in order to save her husband when he can no longer help himself. She who thus denies him the opportunity of inflicting hopeless poverty on herself or her children is more noble than the wife who weakly yields, and afterwards deplores her loss.

The late concessions on the part of lawmakers, recognizing the necessity of protecting the interests of the weaker sex, prove that the true doctrine of Woman's Rights-the right of doing as she will with her own-is obtaining favor among men. It is certain that women have the power in their own hands, and if they desire a wider capable of filling worthily that to which they are now confined.

Short Weight.

In reply to a correspondent on Edisto Island, we beg leave to say that there is no public weigher of fertilizers in Charleston. Where fertilizers fall short of the weight charged the consignee, the best course, we presume, is to make application at once to the railroad company, or steamship company, who carried the fertilizer. Their receipt shows the number of fall tons received, and for the delivery of which they are responsible. The obtaining of an exact and specific receipt will often save purchasers much trouble.

The Rights of Strikers.

We lately called attention to the threat of the leaders of the proposed labor revolt that they would compel every workingman to join with them, whether he thought the strike wise or foolish. Such agitators understand Liberty to be the right of A to force B to do whatever A thinks is good for B. They have no comprehension of the broad principle that, so far as his actions affect only his personal interests, every individual has the right to do what he pleases. This is well put in the recent decision of a Massachusetts Judge who has committed for trial a horse-shoer who, being on a strike, threatened and assaulted a laborer who fused to join the strike. In the course of his decision the judge quoted the following passage from the records of the Supreme Court: "Freedom is the policy of this country, but freedom does not imply a right in one person, either alone or in combination with others, to disturb or annoy another, either directly or indirectly, in his lawful business or occupation, or to threaten him with annoyance or injury for the sake of compelling him to buy his peace, or, in the language of the statute, with intent to extort money or any pecuniary advantage whatever, or to compel him to do any act against his will.' The acts alleged and proved in this case are peculiarly offensive to the tree principles which prevail in this country, and if such practices could enjoy impunity they would tend to establish a tyranny of irresponsible persons over labor and mechanical business which would be extremely tyranny of Labor, in its injurious consequences, is as indefensible as the tyranny of Capital. It is difficult, perhaps, for a poorly educated man to understand that he must not require his fellows to join him in an effort to secure higher wages, when he knows perfectly well that unless there is unity of action the attempt must fail. To him it seems that the man who refuses to strike is responsible for the collapse of the strike. It does not enter into his head, at first, that the man who declines to leave his work is merely exercising the same freedom of action which the striker exercises in leaving his work. The beatings and murders which have taken place in England show how far men will go in endeavoring to overawe their comrades. An act has recently passed in Illinois for the protection of workmen against the violence of over zealous trade-unionists. And a law substantially like that which obtains in Massachusetts should be placed on the statute book of every State.

The Anthracite Coal Fields.

It is known that the basins containing the anthracite or hard coal are in Pennsylvania, and confined to a comparatively small territory. During the last fiscal year over seventeen million tons were mined and sent to market, and it is estimated that during the present year more than twenty million tons will be mined and consumed. At this rate of consumption the anthracite coal must be rapidly decreasing, and in the same ratio the value of the coal lands must be increasing. It is estimated that the large tracts of coal lands recently purchased by the several Pennsylvania Bailroad Companies will, in a few years, be worth five or ten times as much as they paid per acre for the same. As the anthracite coal lands increase in price, and the coal diminishes in quantity, the greater will be the value of bituminous coal lands of Pennsylvania and the other States where the soft coal is located.

A New Planet.

The Georgetown Planet, a paper edited by Jas. A. Bowley and R. O. Bush, has made its appearance. The Planet aims to supply "the want of a live Republican newspaper in the "First Congressional District." Most of its effulgence is manifestly borrowed from that loyal luminary, the Columbia Union.
